Course Description

This course examines aspects of human development that influence and are influenced by family interactions and values. We will begin with an overview of research methods and research design strategies intended to minimize threats to validity. Then, we will review and compare theoretical concepts from academic disciplines such as psychology, genetics, epigenetics, neurology and evolutionary theories such as ethology. Both of these aforementioned course goals will be assessed on the midterm exams. After the midterm, we will review and evaluate theory and research related to the following four topics: (i) attachment in infancy (i.e., interactional patterns that influence the security of infant attachment to caregivers), (ii) patterns in sex-typed behaviour, gender knowledge, and gender identity in childhood and adolescence, (iii) discipline goals and methods as well as physical and emotional abuse, and (iv) patterns in friendship formation and bullying in childhood and adolescence.

Prerequisites: None

Required Text: Bee, H., Boyd, D., & Johnson, P. (2012). Lifespan Development (4th Canadian Ed.). Toronto: Pearson Education.

- I require that you purchase a copy of the 4th Canadian Edition (New, Used, or E-Text).
- Regarding the electronic version of the required textbook (e-text), (i) the contents of the e-text are exactly the same as the print version, (ii) the e-text is much cheaper (~$50), and (iii) you will be able to copy/paste relevant material from the e-text into the Word documents that contain the independent questions (IQs). If you prefer to study from print sources, you could print the Word documents or answered IQs. If you are interested in purchasing an electronic version of the textbook go directly to www.coursesmart.com as this is slightly cheaper than using the link the bookstore provides. Independent Questions (IQs)

The multiple-choice exams require you to independently read portions of the textbook that are not covered in the lectures. In most classes, instructors assign chapters that you are required to read independently. I do not assign chapter readings rather I assign chapter questions (IQs). You will receive the IQs via email. So, rather than reading the entire chapter and preparing your own notes, you should answer the IQs and study your answers to prepare for the multiple-choice exams. Textbook material that is unrelated to the IQs will NOT appear on exams. Consequently, the IQs help you to identify what is on the multiple-choice exams as well as offering commentary designed to support your learning. You do not need to hand-in your answers to the IQs.

Lecture Format

I will email everyone a Lecture Template the day before the lecture (~6pm). It is your responsibility to do the following:

1. Read the lecture template BEFORE the lecture (this should take ~15 minutes or less).
2. Bring the lecture template to class so you can add lecture notes in an organized way. For example, I will provide elaborations, examples, and additional notes during the lectures.

UBC Course Policies

Attendance

The calendar states: “Regular attendance is expected of students in all their classes. Students who neglect their academic work and assignments may be excluded from the final examinations. Students who are unavoidably absent because of illness or disability should report to their instructors on return to classes”. Regardless of the reason for your absence, you are responsible for obtaining missed lecture notes. Unfortunately, the videos shown in class are not available on-line. Be prepared to attend 100% of lectures to do well in the course.

Accommodations

The University accommodates students with disabilities. The University also accommodates students whose religious obligations conflict with attendance or scheduled exams. Please let me know in the first week of class, if you will require an accommodation on either of these grounds.

Students who plan to be absent for varsity athletics, family obligations, or other commitments, cannot assume they will be accommodated. Please discuss your commitments with me in the first week of class so that you will know whether an accommodation will be awarded.

Academic Dishonesty

Please review the “Academic Regulations” from the UBC calendar to learn about university policies on cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic dishonesty. If you are caught cheating on an exam for this course, you will be asked to leave the classroom and you will receive zero on the exam.

Missed Exams

Make-up exams are a privilege and will be given to students with a bona fide medical note. Because of concerns about fairness, it is not possible for a makeup exam to increase your overall course percent. For example, if you earn 80% on the makeup exam and an average of 70% on the remaining exams, your overall course percent will be 70%.

If you miss an exam, you must:

- (1) Email me no later than 1 day AFTER the missed exam (ideally before the scheduled exam date)
- (2) Be able to attend the makeup exam,
- (3) Bring your medical note to the make-up exam.

If you miss a final exam, you will need to write a make-up exam in the following term (i.e., in term 1 of winter 2013/2014).
