Course Assignments, Due Dates and Grading: The grading in this course is based on a written paper assignment, a midterm exam and a final exam.

NOTE: No cell phones or electronic devices are allowed in class during the exams or in class paper. If your cell phone or device is on during any of these classes you will receive a “0” for the grade and you will be charged with academic misconduct.

Paper: In this paper, you must define “scientific explanation”. You should consider the difference between understanding and explanation, define what you mean by explanation with consideration of the “covering law model” or “deductive-nomological model” (Hempel and Oppenheim, 1948) and take a position regarding the argument that explanation is deduction. You will prepare for this paper with emphasis on ideas and your understanding rather than citing sources. The paper will be written during class, Friday, Sept. 30th. (33.3%)

Midterm Exam: The midterm exam is during class time (50 minutes) and will cover the reading material and lecture materials covered to this date. The format will be short answer and essay. Friday October 17th in class. (33.3%)

Final Exam: The final exam may be cumulative and may cover all readings and lecture material throughout the course. It is a 2 hour exam in the December examination period arranged by the Registrar's Office. (33.4%)

FINAL SCHEDULED BY REGISTRAR`S OFFICE. (DEC 6-21st)

Course Policies:

The calendar says: Regular attendance is expected of students in all their classes (including lectures, laboratories, tutorials, seminars, etc.). Students who neglect their academic work and assignments may be excluded from the final examinations. Students who are unavoidably absent because of illness or disability should report to their instructors on return to classes.

The University accommodates students with disabilities who have registered with the Disability Resource Centre. The University accommodates students whose religious obligations conflict with attendance, submitting assignments, or completing scheduled tests and examinations. Please let your instructor know in advance, preferably in the first week of class, if you will require any accommodation on these grounds. Students who plan to be absent for varsity athletics, family obligations, or other similar commitments, cannot assume they will be accommodated, and should discuss their commitments with the instructor before the drop date.

Late assignments: Late assignments or the mid-term can receive an accommodation if a valid medical letter from the medical doctor is presented. Family emergencies and other unavoidable delays may be discussed with the instructor preferably before the absence. The instructor will subtract 10% per day from the grade for any late paper that has not received an accommodation. Absence from the final exam is a serious matter. You should talk to the instructor for further directions in this regard. Under no conditions is a plane ticket arranged after the beginning of the course considered a valid reason for missing any exam.

Academic Dishonesty: Please review the UBC Calendar “Academic regulations” for the university policy on cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic dishonesty. Also visit www.arts.ubc.ca and go to the students’ section for useful information on avoiding plagiarism and on correct documentation. If there are any questions in this regard please consult the instructor.

Students should retain a copy of all submitted assignments (in case of loss) and should also retain all their marked assignments in case they wish to apply for a Review of Assigned Standings. Students have the right to view their marked examinations with their instructor, providing they apply to do so within a month of receiving their final grades. This review is for pedagogic purposes. The examination remains the property of the university.

Student Classroom Behavior: Students should expect to listen to the instructor and the comments and questions of other students during this class. Students whose behavior disrupts listening and learning, such as excessive chatting with friends during class, will be asked not to attend classes until they can guarantee appropriate conduct.
